Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Luke Feldman, the creator of Skaffs, is an Australian artist that creates for a multitude of platforms. Inspired by childhood experiences and a vivid imagination, his illustrations and animations are minimalist, with defined lines, detailed characters, and vividly vibrant colours that give his work depth and movement.

His distinctive style has led to a number of high profile illustration and animation projects. Some of the highlights include Flash animation and interactive content for Wallop (a Microsoft social-networking company), illustrations for Coca-Cola's 2007 advertising campaign, designs for a 1 storey high MAC World Conference booth, and fashion illustrations for Custo-Barcelona. He has been featured in Desktop Magazine, Contagious Magazine, Staf Magazine, DPi Magazine and many more international magazines. He has exhibited worldwide including a more recent Los Angeles exhibition with Dr Seuss to mark the launch of the "Horton Hears a Who" film. He was a finalist in the Erotic Art Prize, a finalist in the DeskTop Create Awards illustration competition, a finalist in the Addicting Games Flash game design competition and a finalist in the International Independent Film Festival at Comic Con 2007. His SKAFFS product line includes a popular skate deck line, giant vinyl adhesive line and more recently t-shirts and collectors toys.
