ABOUT HKASA

Help Keep a Sister Alive (HKASA) assembles information in one place to help patients, survivors, caretakers, friends and family cope with ovarian cancer and other cancers affecting women. It is a partner member of the Ovarian Cancer National Alliance (OCNA), a member of Scientist+Survivor Program of American Association of Cancer Research (AACR) and an Affiliated Health Professional patient advocacy member of American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO).

HKASA strives to address the interrelationship of environment and health. Our goal is to build a movement to change the conversation about treating cancer. HKASA goes beyond traditional avenues of cancer treatment. We provide information about integrative approaches to cancer nutrition, exercise, yoga, meditation and massage, which have been shown to lower the physical and economic costs of cancer treatment.
