Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

I'm a London based graphic designer with a broad mix of skills in the design field and can work in both digital and print based graphic design. I can work in moving image, illustration, environment design, book design, typography, website design and branding/identity. However, I mostly specialise in information design , which is a branch of graphic design that deals with data visualisation, diagram design, information architecture and anything that helps people to learn effectively from visual communication.

As a designer I have a somewhat modernist influence on my work. I like to rely on a lot geometric forms and sometimes my design work can be very systems based. I believe design is best when it is clear and communicates the most effectively. I also have a good eye for detail.

I believe design to be an important tool to educate and inform people and also as an effective form of storytelling. Design can be the bridge that connects the average person to complex subjects like science, through making it easier to understand. I'm also fascinated with new media and new technologies.
