Professional Experience and Curriculum Vitae

Over a decade of knowledge, skills and experiences in telecommunications, digital advertising and web development has amounted to me becoming the online entrepreneur I am today. Before leaving school I simultaneously studied a home based learning diploma in electronic engineering and industrial electronics. This qualified me an opportunity to work in cyber security and electronic warfare with the Ministry of Defense during the early 21st century where I embraced a passion for web development and hacking. By my early twenties I was excelling in my military career but chose to become an internet entrepreneur by starting his own company. Thanks to this transition I possess a rare paradigm which perfectly balances me between that of an institutional and network thinker.
